

As regional leaders prepared for the SADC meeting in Windhoek, Vigil supporters were disturbed to read the comments on Zimbabwe by South Africa's top foreign ministry official, Aya nda Ntsaluba. He said: “ is on the correct path. . . The overwhelming picture is favourable.”

The Vigil believes Mr Ntsaluba's picture can only be seen with head buried in the sand – but then there is plenty of sand in Namibia. He further observed that Zimbabwe was "beginning to use its natural resources to improve the lives of its people". About time, some would say. But if he was referring to the Marange diamonds it will be news to Finance Minister Tendai Biti, who has said publicly that the Treasury has received no revenue from the diamonds. Not one dollar. Mr Ostrich Ntsaluba's comments deflated hopes that the Southern African Dictators' Club would take any steps to honour its commitment to ensure that Mugabe observes the abortive GPA. As one Vigil supporter said “They can't manage their wives, let alone Mugabe”.

The Vigil believes that it is long past time for the international community – or the small part of it that cares about human rights – to take a tougher approach to the SADC countries. It could, for instance, take a closer look at the nasty regime in (which can always be relied on to support Mugabe).

Swaziland

A strong supporter of the Zimbabwe Vigil has been a Swazi lady Thobile Gwebu, who in January started a Vigil outside the Swaziland High Commission in London in protest at human rights abuses in her homeland. We were shocked that the UK Home Office has seen fit to detain her for immediate deportation – shocked in particular that the Home Office is concentrating on asylum seekers instead of dealing with clear abuses of the immigration / visa system reported at length in the Times this week, a much bigger problem.

Vigil supporters signed the following petition for immediate dispatch to the Home Office:

Petition to the Home Secretary

UK to deport Swazi Activist

The most prominent Swazi pro-democracy activist in the UK, Thobile Gwebu, has been detained by the UK

immigration authorities and is due to be deported as a failed asylum seeker on Tuesday 17th

August at 20.30

Thobile is the co-ordinator of the Swaziland Vigil which has been campaigning for human rights outside the Swaziland High Commission in London since January, see: www.swazilandvigil.co.uk .In May the Swazi Times quoted her extensively in an article about the Swaziland Vigil. The paper also interviewed a Swazi government minister about the the UK protest. This means that Thobile is known to the Swazi authorities as a pro-democracy activist and the Swazi authorities have made clear their attitude to dissent.□

The Zimbabwe Vigil strongly believes that Thobile will be at considerable risk if returned to Swaziland.□ It is Africa's last absolute monarchy and is under Africa

's longest-running state of emergency. We quote Thobile's own words: "Exiled Swazis and supporters urge the UK

to put pressure on the absolute monarch King Mswati III to allow political freedom, freedom of speech, the rule of law, respect for women and affordable AIDS drugs in Swaziland

." The Zimbabwe Vigil is appalled that her asylum claim has been turned down and that she is to be handed over to this medieval despot, who would like to spend the country's meager revenues on a Boeing to fly his 14 wives to the fleshpots of the world.□

Supporters of the Zimbabwe Vigil urge the Home Secretary to intervene so that further consideration can be given to Ms Gwebu's case

Thanks to Luka Phiri of the Vigil management team and Vigil supporter Eunita Masolo who dropped everything to visit Thobile at the Yarl's Wood Detention Centre on Friday and take her thoughtful necessities and further thanks to Luka who is faxing our petition (signed by more than 300 people this afternoon!) to Theresa May, the Home Secretary. Luka was an ideal person to visit Thobile as he has been in the same position. His visit gave her great comfort.

Other points

- The sight of the day was Vigil Co-ordinator Dumi Tutani circling the Vigil on one of the bicycles now rented out by the London authorities, who have installed a bicycle rank next to the Vigil.
- Thanks to Kelvin Kamupira who took charge of the back table with the merchandise and register today.
- Everyone signed Francesca Toft's birthday card. She turned 20 yesterday and after many years with the Vigil has become very popular and is always a great help in looking after children.
- Vigil supporters were interested to see the article by Eric Bloch on Mugabe's recent outburst ( Zim: A man-made economic hell) that the West could go to hell. Mr Bloch said this was an invitation to the West to remain in

Zimbabwe

, which Mugabe has made a hell!
