

Most of us at the Vigil have relatives or friends who have taken refuge in South Africa. This is hardly surprising given that an estimated 1 in 4 Zimbabweans have fled the Mugabe meltdown.

We know of the hardships refugees in South Africa have suffered but we were shocked to hear that the Zuma government has now announced measures which could see many of them sent back to Zimbabwe

at the end of the year (

<http://www.timeslive.co.za/local/article638337.ece/>

End-of-the-line-for-illegal-Zim-nationals ).

Explaining the decision, government spokesman Themba Maseko said 'We believe that some form of stability has returned to Zimbabwe'. The Vigil believes that people sent home to poverty, starvation and abuse will not thank the schizophrenic MDC which has been telling two contradictory stories: complaining at home of victimisation while proclaiming to the outside world that things are getting better.

Take the case of Tsvangirai's beautician Theresa Makone, promoted from make-up and hair-styling to the dizzying depths of co-minister of Home Affairs. Now she is trying to make the police look beautiful. The police, she told the Zimbabwe Independent, were now executing their duties in a professional manner. Continuing her cosmetic wizardry, she went on 'I can assure you that everything has been looked at and there is no more hiding behind a finger of someone powerful. As I speak right now everything is being effected – all court orders are being implemented, work is being done as the country moves forward. We are doing our job . . . The Zimbabwe Republic Police is doing what it was mandated to do' (see: <http://www.theindependent.co.zw/local/27867-police-have-turned-over-new-leaf--makone-.html> ).

We are told that – now the World Cup is over – there is hardly a day in South Africa that passes without negative comments about Zimbabweans (see:

<http://www.swradioafrica.com/news>

030910/zum\_aput030910.htm ).

So it is not surprising that the government there grasps at MDC fantasies and looks to get rid of unwanted refugees despite the manifest failure of the interim government to end human rights abuses and revive the comatose economy.

We in the UK are also fearful of being dispatched to the mercies of this dysfunctional government and we urge South Africa to think again before sending Zimbabweans back to Mugabe. Our view is that

Pretoria

's persistent failure to stand by its proclaimed democratic principles has betrayed Zimbabweans. We warn them that if they do not deal honestly with us South Africans will face the same fate as Zimbabweans.

Can they seriously think that things are going alright in Zimbabwe when the regime has resumed jamming of outside broadcasts? (see:

<http://www.cathybuckle.com/index.php?id=7>

Other points

- The BBC rebroadcast a moving documentary about the plight of children in Zimbabwe: 'Zimbabwe's forgotten children'. Many passers-by said they didn't realise how bad things were.

- Our partner organisation in Zimbabwe, Restoration of Human Rights in Zimbabwe (ROHR), is involved in a new peace building initiative launched on 31

st

August. It is to be spearheaded by ROHR and three other civil society organizations, Centre for Community Development in Zimbabwe, Catholic Commission for Justice and Peace and Victims Action Committee under the banner 'You and I can make peace happen'. (See:

<http://www.rohrzimbabwe.org/Latest-News-from-ROHR-in-Zimbabwe/>

- A benefactor has made available copies of Zimbabwean human rights activist Judith Todd's acclaimed account of the rise of Mugabe 'Through the Darkness'. See review: <http://www.timesonline.co.uk/tol/news/world/africa/article2510767.ece>

See our 'Event and Notices' section for how to obtain a copy. All proceeds will be donated to the Budiro Trust, which provides bursaries to needy A Level students in Zimbabwe

- Thanks to Anthony Webb-Martin who gave us an archive of past issues of the Zimbabwean. They were gratefully received by Vigil team

member Patson Muzuwa. We are often asked for past copies of the newspaper.

- Our Swazi friend Thobile Gwebu is still in detention. We are helping to secure bail for her and hope she will be free soon.
