

Vigil supporters – like people all over the world – have been transfixed by the drama in Egypt. The sudden arrival in Cairo 's Tehrir Square of violent provocateurs of the corrupt and oppressive Mubarak regime made us feel quite at home.

Suddenly the absurdity of Mugabe was thrown into clear focus – 87 this month yet seeking re-election for another term: another botoxed octogenarian with dyed hair unable to loosen his claws on power, even to caress his gold bars . . .

Vigil supporter Peter Chareka told us how he was at the Harare meeting in 1986 launching the 21 February Movement – the Mugabe youth organisation which has degenerated into the green bombers. He recalled: 'During an interview with the ZBC on his birthday, Mugabe was asked what he wanted to do when he got older. He promised to retire completely from politics. He said "I can't wait to enjoy life as an ordinary citizen". I was nearly 15 years old and I looked up to him. He promised to write a book about his life. Up to now I have not read a single page . . .'

The Vigil was well-attended despite the absence of a group of supporters from Luton who were unable to join us because of demonstrations there over Islamic fundamentalism (see: <http://www.bbc.co.uk/news/uk-england-beds-bucks-herts-12372713>

). Vigil supporter Hellena Gus

inyu sent the following email: 'I am writing this on behalf of all our Vigil supporters in Luton who couldn't come to the Vigil this Saturday due to the protest in Luton by the English Defence League against Islamic power. The roads are blocked and buses have been told to use another route and the violence with Muslims has already started. But we know those who are attending the Vigil will be doing it on our behalf".

As we mark the 2nd anniversary of the formation of the 'government of national unity' we were encouraged to see a note of honesty at last from the MDC's Co-minister of Home Affairs, Theresa Makoni. Revealing the impotence of the MDC in government, she said 'most times you write letters but nothing happens . . . (see: <http://www.swradioafrica.com/news040211/>

We Zimbabweans in the UK pay loads of taxes some of which goes to help people at home through the UK

's Department for International Development – about £100 million this year. We are glad to see that the British Embassy in Harare is being more outspoken about Zanu PF's abuse of this aid. (See: http://www.zimbabwesituation.com/feb5_2011.html#Z2 anniversary, the protest at Lancaster House etc. The latest video diaries are uploaded on the home page.

.█████████ Sue Toft on our front desk says a man who dropped by told her that he had met Mugabe as an 8 year old when his parents went to Harrods department store. He said; ‘I shook his hand but now I wish I had kicked him in the shins’. If the EU lifts sanctions this month he may yet have the chance to do so . . .
