

Don't take him Germany – Zimbabwe Vigil Diary: 28th December 2013

The Vigil is not surprised by reports that Zimbabwe's Ambassador to Germany, Tsvangirai's relative Hebson Makuvishe, has applied for asylum there. We know that the last thing he wants to do is to return to Zimbabwe and face allegations of fraud.

We at the Vigil had a memorable brush with Makuvishe in January 2008 when he was Tsvangirai's representative in the UK, helping to destroy the MDC here. He tried to take over the Vigil and we called the police to eject his gang of thugs. Vigil co-ordinator Rose Benton vividly recalls him waving his fist in her face while screaming 'don't call me a bully'. (see: <http://www.zimvigil.co.uk/the-vigil-diary/201-zimbabwe-vigil-diary-28th-november-2009>).

During his 4 year tenure in Berlin Makuvishe has perfected his German to the extent that he can fluently demand 'Knete her' (Give me money!) The Vigil is sending the following open letter to the German Embassy in London:

Dear Ambassador

We hear that Zimbabwe's outgoing Ambassador to Germany Hebson Makuvishe has asked for asylum in Germany rather than return home to face possible fraud allegations.

We at the Zimbabwe Vigil would recommend , from our own knowledge of this man's conduct when he was in the UK, that Germany should deny his application. Our interest is that we would not welcome him being given papers which would potentially enable him to resume his poisonous mischief in the UK.

We know that the Vigil also speaks for many Zimbabweans who have taken refuge in Germany. We would be happy to give you details of this thug's history.

The Vigil, outside the Zimbabwe Embassy, 429 Strand, London, takes place every Saturday from 14.00 to 18.00 to protest against gross violations of human rights in Zimbabwe. The Vigil which started in October 2002 will continue until internationally-monitored, free and fair elections are held in Zimbabwe. <http://www.zimvigil.co.uk> .

Makuvise's reported application emerged after it was announced that Zimbabwe's Ambassador to Australia, Jacqueline Zwambila, had asked for asylum there. She said that the July elections were stolen and she wouldn't be safe back home. Zimeye commented: '

Both Makuvise and Zwambila are disliked by 90% of their party cadres who say their appointments were without merit, being regarded as cheap family appointments by Morgan Tsvangirai.' (See:

Whatever the squirmings of the recalled MDC ambassadors the most telling story for us in the diaspora was that if you googled Zimbabwe News on Christmas day you would find that the most widely reported story was 'Zimbabweans face gloomy holidays'. Hopeless despair is what the outside world sees on the face of Zimbabweans. As the MDC MP Eddie Cross pointed out: This Zanu PF regime has virtually closed the doors on investment and 'without investment there is no hope for anyone in Zimbabwe'.

In their Christmas message Zimbabwe's Roman Catholic bishops lamented: 'there are no visible prospects for improvement in the spheres of life in Zimbabwe that cry for restoration to give people hope for a better life.' This is 'despite the country being blessed with abundant natural resources and resilient, God-fearing and highly skilled people.'

(See: <http://www.ecumenicalnews.com/article/mugabe-still-rules-but-zimbabwe-more-polarized-says-bishops-22646> – Top of Form Mugabe still rules, but Zimbabwe 'more polarized' say bishops). The bishops went on: 'Our industrial sites carry the appearance of ghost towns because the once-vibrant manufacturing sector is now largely moribund. The dignity of our people has been severely eroded as they have become reduced to sellers of cheap goods and products at street corners in our cities in order to survive.'

The bishops urged re-engagement with the international community but, as the Vigil goes through its 12th winter, we see how the Mugabe regime continues to insult the donor countries.

We appeal to western embassies in Harare to urgently investigate new reports that food aid is being refused to opposition supporters (see: MDC-T supporters denied food and inputs in Mash East

). This comes despite the announcement that the UK is pouring more money into feeding Zimbabwe (see:

On the last Vigil of 2013 we were grateful to David Kadzutu, Mary Muteyerwa, Danai Magidhi and Bridget Zhakata who were there at the start to help set up.
